Secreted Treasure.

CLEVELAND, O., March 24.—Martin Noonan is serving a sentence in the Ohio Penitentiary for a $21,000 express robbery at Painsville. A special from that town says Noonan has the money secreted, and will enjoy it when liberated from prison.

An Impudent Puppy.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 24.—C. P. Reddick, a well known gambler, was fined $150 yesterday for brutally assaulting Mrs. G. Whalley. While Mrs. Whalley and her sister were walking on Union street, they were insulted by Reddick. They told him he was mistaken and asked him to take the other side of the street. He cursed them and pushed Mrs. Whalley into the street. That lady was assisted to rise by her sister, and they both rushed across the street into Barnes' auction house. The ladies, after going home, informed Mr. Whalley that they had been insulted by Reddick. Whalley, not knowing what had occurred, went to seek Reddick, armed only with a small walking cane. He met Reddick on the street near Tavel's, and collared him with the intention of giving Whalley a thrashing. Reddick pushed Whalley off, and before he could rise Reddick drew a pistol and started after Whalley, who ran into Tavel's store. An officer came up and arrested Reddick. In addition to being fined he was arrested on a bench warrant from the Criminal Court.

Polk's Proposition.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 25.—A resolution was adopted in the Senate Saturday allowing Mr. Polk to pay $100,000 in genuine bonds of the Bank of Tennessee within ten days, and $75,000 of internal improvement bonds, with $38,750 accumulated interest, which shall be received as $75,000, and $75,000 of genuine notes issued by the Bank of Tennessee, to be paid within ninety days from date, which shall be credited upon the deficit of Polk, for the sum of $250,000, which when paid shall relieve the surplus of Polk and the assets attached in the hands of J. W. Childers, the balance to be paid in current money or genuine issue of the Bank of Tennessee; provided that nothing in this act shall prevent the prosecution of Polk until the whole of said deficit and defaults have been paid or satisfied.

A Hanging in Texas.

FRANKLIN, Tex., March 23.—Fred. Waite was hanged inside the jail walls here Friday afternoon for the murder of the Jailer, A. D. Wyser, last May. The hanging was on nearly the same spot on which the murderer was committed. Waite's body was turned over to the doctors, who had bought it of him. Wyatt Banks, Waite's accomplice in the murder, was resited until the 23d of April.

Mt. Etna Actively at Work.

ROME, March 23.—The eruption of Mount Etna continues. A new crater has opened and a stream of lava is flowing down the mountain. Several of the villages on the slope are threatened, and the villagers have abandoned their homes and fled to places of safety. The earthquake shocks are almost constant over an area more than twenty miles in circumference.

Ruined Orchards in Iowa.

DES MOINES, March 25.—Reports from different sections say the apple trees are all killed by freezing, and the indications are that the orchards of the entire State are dead, which is a loss incalculable.

Type Foundry in Salt Lake.

SALT LAKE, UTAH, March 25.—The first type cast from Utah lead and Utah sand-moss was turned out yesterday.

DUKES, THE MURDERER.

The Youth of the Man Who Murdered Capt. Nutt.

From the Cradle to the Legislature—A Career in Which Murder Was an Incidental Event.

COLUMBUS, O., March 25.—HEN. John A. Kithcart, a member of the Legislature from Steubenville, Jefferson county, was for two years the college associate of Dukes, the man who murdered Captain Nutt, of Uniontown, Pa., and was but a few days since acquitted by a jury. The storm of indignation aroused by the verdict is familiar to all. Mr. Kithcart and Dukes attended Washington and Jefferson College at Washington, Pa., in 1863 and 1870, and during these two years were together a great deal, being roommates. Mr. Kithcart related some interesting reminiscences of Dukes, his appearance, bearing and character at that time. The murderer of Captain Nutt was then a bearded youth of twenty-one, and was generally regarded as a fine looking fellow. While he was a bright boy, and stood reasonably well in his class, it was known that he was capable of making much better progress than he did. He, however, did not seem to be particularly ambitious or energetic, and was content if he kept up a good enough record to stand pretty well in his class. After leaving Washington he went to Princeton, where he graduated, and stood thirteenth in a class of over 100. Those peculiar habits and traits of character which have since brought him into such unenviable notoriety that he is now almost without a friend, and has barely escaped the hangman's noose, were noticeable in even his college days, when just emerging from boyhood into manhood. He was not particularly sociable, and, though not sullen or morose, did not cultivate or invite confidential relations with the majority of his fellow students. Mr. Kithcart was probably more intimately associated with him than any one at college, and with every opportunity to study him, concluded at last that he was an enigma.

At this period Dukes was apparently very religious, took a deep interest in theology, led in prayer meetings and singing hymns, and as the school is a Presbyterian institution, he stood solid with the professors and the faculty, who were charmed with his piety. But, while he was devout and angelic in theory, he was the same man then in regard to women; and the same light regard for the virtue of a fair girl, or the sanctity of a man's home and the marriage vows that has since characterized his course. While he was extremely cautious, he was only the more dangerous on that account. He was continually in some intrigue with a woman, and, according to his story to his room-mate, constantly had two or three girls and as many married women "on the string." Though very secretive, his amours were the talk of a certain element in the college, and he was recognized as the libertine of the school. Dukes had no faith in the purity of women, and frequently expressed the opinion that none could stand the crucial test. He boasted that he did not think there was a woman in the State who was still in her youth that he could not call on a few times and then accomplish her ruin.

There are very peculiar and striking features in the careers of Mr. Kithcart and Dukes. They are about the same age, were chums at college, were admitted to the bar and began the practice of law about the same time, and were both elected to the Legislature of their respective States from Republican counties within a year of each other. Mr. Kithcart has reason to congratulate himself that the similarity in records terminates at this point.

A JUDGE'S SYMPATHY.

With the Revenger of a Sister's Dishonor Conkling Admitted to Bail.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Geo. W. Conkling, the slayer of Wm. H. Haverstick's sister, was brought into the Court-house Saturday from the Tombs, and his counsel argued for the admission of the prisoner to bail, on the ground that the Coroner's Jury had placed the crime at manslaughter.

Mr. O'Byrne opposed the admission of Conkling to bail, saying that the Coroner's Jury could not go into an investigation of the case, as that was beyond their province. It was evident, he said, that the accused had gone to Haverstick's flat with the intention of doing him harm.

"There is nothing in the evidence to warrant my brother's discretion," interrupted Mr. Howe, jumping up from his seat, "and the contrary was shown at the inquest."

Mr. O'Byrne responded, in language more forcible than elegant, that he "took little stock" in the "slopping gush" about leading astray and all that sort of thing.

With flashing eyes Mr. Howe turned upon him, while the audience looked on in breathless expectancy, and striking an attitude he dramatically exclaimed: "If this 'slopping gush' had been applied to my sister, I should have shot that man or you," he fairly roared, shaking his finger at his adversary, "or any other person who might have stood in Haverstick's place."

This was the signal for an outburst of loud applause from the audience.

Mr. Howe apologized to the Court for the intermission which led to the demonstration, and continued that the circumstances were such that he could not restrain his feelings, and reminded the Court that, no matter what the verdict of the Coroner's Jury was, the only question now was as to bail.

Mr. Hummel handed the papers in the case to Judge Donohue, who retired to consider the application, and in a short time sent out the papers with the following endorsement upon them:

"It is clear that the defendant is entitled to bail on the evidence here, and that in a reasonable amount; but I think the proper practice is to send the accused before a Justice in the first instance, and Justice Smith is designated as the Justice."

Mr. Conkling received the news with delight, and was then taken from the ante-room, to which he had been removed, and escorted to the Tombs to be admitted to bail.

Justice Smith admitted Conkling to bail in $6,000.

A WARNING TO PUBLISHERS.

The Attempt to Legislate Editors into Jail.

NEW YORK, March 25.—The Sun, in discussing a proposed measure affecting the rules of procedure in regard to trials for libel says: "In the telegraphic summary of the proceedings of the Legislature yesterday appears the statement that Mr. Koch introduced into the Senate a bill to make an indictment for libel against a newspaper triable in any place where the newspaper circulates, which bill was at once reported by the Judiciary Committee and passed.

For more than thirty years the laws of this State have permitted a defendant under indictment for an alleged libel in a newspaper to be tried in the county where the paper was printed. To secure this right, he has only to give a bond in an amount not exceeding $1,000 for the payment of the complainant's reasonable expenses in attending the trial if the prosecution is successful.

The bill just passed by the State Senate is evidently intended to deprive editors and publishers of a statutory safeguard which has been found essential to the liberty of the press in this State.

If this measure becomes a law, a Buffalo editor may be dragged to New York to be tried for libel here, simply because a few copies of his paper are circulated in this city; or, for like reason, a Long Island journalist may be taken to St. Lawrence for trial, before a jury of strangers, hundreds of miles from his home. How easy, under such a system, for a corrupt legislator, about whom too much truth has been published, to avail himself of the instrumentality of the law as a means of muzzling the press. He can procure an indictment in a distant county, where perhaps his own evil influence is paramount, and where the defendant must needs be at great disadvantage in conducting his defense. The trouble, vexation, and expense which unscrupulous prosecutors could and would impose upon newspaper men under this law cannot be exaggerated, and we are confident that the moment the proposed change is understood by the press and the people it will be universally condemned.

The existing law is perfectly fair to both parties. The editor or publisher is entitled to be tried in the place where his paper is printed, and the successful complainant is entitled to be paid his expenses in attending the trial, if the indictment is removed, so that it may be tried in the defendant's county. No public interest demands any change.

Two Murders Committed in Alleged Self-Defense.

WASHINGTON, Ind., March 25.—At Alfordsville, on Friday, John Bingham was instantly killed and Dr. August W. Bingham mortally wounded, and who has since died.

John Bingham, who is seventeen years of age, was fighting with a son of Dr. Wails, aged fourteen years, when Dr. Bingham interfered and parted the boys. The reports say that Dr. Bingham and his son John then commenced abusing the Wails boy, and the noise they made attracted the attention of James S. Gold, a young farmer of twenty-two years. Gold expostulated with Dr. Bingham, who is his uncle, and told him it was shameful for a lot of men to "pug on to" a boy. This enraged Dr. Bingham, and, being restored by another of the doctor's sons, named Orville, they commenced an attack on the cousin and nephew (Gold), driving him into the middle of the street, and hitting him several times. Gold, thinking retreat impossible, pulled a large pocket-knife and stabbed John Bingham to the heart at the first blow. Then he inflicted three dangerous wounds on Dr. Bingham, one being in the abdomen. Orville Bingham fled, and Gold walked over to a Justice of the Peace and surrendered. He was brought to the city, and furnished bail in the sum of $3,000, but was afterward rearrested.

A Contract for the Panama Canal.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., March 25.—Mr. L. Austin Spaulding, of this city, has closed a contract for dredging seven miles of the Panama Canal, and will soon close a contract for three more. The contract is to complete the work of dredging and building that portion of the canal commencing at the Panama end of the route. The Panama Canal Company to furnish machinery and keep it in repair. The price paid Mr. Spaulding for the job is about $1,000,000 per mile. Thus the whole amount will be in the neighborhood of $10,000,000, the largest contract ever made in Western New York. He is President of the Found Manufacturing Company, this city, and closed a large contract for dredges, &c., for them, amounting to over a hundred thousand dollars, and that company received at once $26,000 to bind the bargain. The payments will be made the minute the machinery is shipped to Panama. Mr. Spaulding is sure he will make $100,000 a mile on the contract, and he is a man of great executive ability, and the contract causes some excitement here.

Mr. Tilden Redivivus.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Samuel J. Tilden has got a new lease of life, and proposes to re-enter the political arena. He attributes his restoration to health in great part to following the example of Charles O'Conor, who, after escaping from the jaws of death, dismissed his doctor, "threw physic to the dogs," and, retiring from the active duties and cares of the world, lived a regular, methodical life, and allowed nature to recuperate. He believes that he is destined to have a period of triumph, and that his life will be rounded out in peace, contentment and glory.

A Bridge Disaster.

SALEM, Ill., March 25.—A terrible accident took place about eight miles south of Luka, on the Skillet Fork. Neal Helm was building a bridge, and just as they were finishing

To Correspondents.

Our good friends in the country who have from time to time favored us with the news of their respective neighborhoods are requested to deal only with matters of live interest and to make their communications as brief as possible consistent with the importance of the matter sent. The limited space we will have to spare hereafter makes condensation absolutely necessary. A correspondent is wanted at every postoffice in the county.

QUEEN VICTORIA's barked shin, we are pleased to say, is better.

It is reported that Mr. John R. McLean is again bargaining for the New York World.

It is expected that trains will be running from Richmond, Kentucky to Cincinnati by July 1.

The volume of immigration continues to decrease and it is now lower than at any time since 1879.

HELENA, ARK., is so hopelessly in debt, made so by the flood, that it desires to surrender its charter as a city.

In some parts of Illinois it is estimated that at least one-third of the winter wheat has been killed or injured by the cold weather.

We agree with the Washington Post that there is no more necessity for a brigade of Internal Revenue Collectors than there is for a battalion of Rear Admirals.

The farmers in Ohio are sending up a howl because the tariff on wool was not raised. They are threatening the Republican party with dire vengeance because they refused to consider their claims for protection. It is a fact that the wool growers there and elsewhere have been sheared by the Republican party.

Mr. C. P. Huestis, the railroad magnate, is very much dissatisfied with the bill to establish Railroad Commission in Tennessee, and has declared that if the measure is adopted he will never build a foot of railroad line in that State. The legislation he claims is unfair and will impose unjust exactions that will have the effect to drive all railroad enterprises to more inviting fields. The railroad law in this State is unwise and impracticable and not much better than that proposed for Tennessee.

The Tobacco Revenue.

It has been officially decided at Washington that the laws concerning the revenue recently enacted by Congress, and the existing statutes on the subject, give ample authority to allow, audit and certify for the payment of the rebate in favor of the manufacturers and dealers in tobacco, but nothing in the law referred to indicates that Congress intended to give authority to make the payment in money. The act, it is held, provides that such rebate shall be paid in stamps at the reduced rates to manufacturers, but this does not extend to dealers in the language of the law. The Internal Revenue Bureau reports that the total number of tobacco dealers coming within the scope of the law is 435,900. Of these, 420,000 are dealers, 15,000 manufacturers of cigars, and 900 manufacturers of tobacco and snuff.

ELLIS CRAFT.

Some Particulars of His Early Life in West Virginia.

His Record There Said to Be One of Murder and Robbery.

[Louisville Commercial.]

Ellis Craft came to Ashland from Logan county, West Virginia, several years ago. He belonged, with other members of his family, to a notorious gang of ruffians and evil-doers in that county who were the terror of all good citizens.

In that county lived one Aaron Brewer, noted as a desperate and fearless man, but a man of his word, and rather liked than otherwise for certain genial and generous qualities. He had a mistress in the county, of whom he was very fond. One night Ellis Craft and some of his gang made an assault on the house of Brewer's mistress, effected an entrance and were taking gross liberties with her when Brewer appeared upon the scene, attacked them, killed one, and put the others to flight, and compelled them afterwards to leave the country. Ellis Craft left among the others and came to Ashland.

A short time before he was driven away from West Virginia, a man came from Pennsylvania to Logan county, prospecting for walnut lumber. One day

Ellis Craft started out as his guide, taking his as with him. He returned and reported that the stranger had left him and gone home another way. About a month afterward the body of the stranger was found, showing marks of foul murder and robbery. Ellis Craft's reputation was such that it was generally believed that he had murdered and robbed the Penesylvanian. It was not long after that he left the country to avoid Brewer's vengeance. While Craft was at Ashland before the murder of the Gibbons children a gang of thieves were plying their avocation in Ashland. Robberies and other disorders were frequent. Since Craft and his accomplices were arrested these crimes have altogether ceased. From this fact, and from his reputation, the people of Ashland believe Craft was the head of the gang.

Since attempts are made to work up a sentiment about Craft that will neutralize the verdict of two juries declaring his guilt, they think it very right that these facts in his earlier career should be made known. They do not wish to see justice defeated and law set aside by a lot of manufactured sentimental slush.

A Good Old Miller.

A New Jersey miller, who had become old and rheumatic, one day called his sons about him and said: "Boys, I am growing stiff in the knees and faint at heart. My liver is out of order, and I can no longer distinguish between a peck and a half bushel when taking toll. This mill is worth ten thousand dollars. In order to form a stock company and render my burdens the lighter, I shall give Reuben two-tenths, Samuel the same, and Henry, who is my first born, three-tenths. Bless you, my children, bless you. You may now go fishing for half a day." The three sons took the papers which the old man had made out, and instead of going fishing, they went down to a lawyer's office, called a meeting of stockholders, and proceeded to business. The first was elected president, Reuben treasurer, and Samuel secretary, and the following resolution was passed: "Resolved, That we baffle the old man and run the mill after our own ideas!"

The above, from the Miller's Review (Philadelphia), illustrates substantially the experience of a good many indulgent, confiding fathers. Some that read this will be reminded of like cases that have come under their own notice.

"No," said the Vermont man, who was shot in the head by his friend while they were out hunting, lost the most of an ear and was considerably scratched, "I don't mind the wounds so much, but it breaks my heart to have my head misinterpreted by my most intimate friend for a polecat."

A Slow Train.

According to the trustworthy Travelers' Magazine, a man was traveling on a "mixed train" (freight, with passenger car attached) on a Western road, when he went to the conductor, and asked him if he couldn't hurry up, as his wife was sick, and he wanted to see her before she died. The conductor said he was on time. Again the man came to the conductor and said he guessed his wife was dead by that time, and he'd give the conductor something extra if he'd get there before the remains were so bad he couldn't recognize her. The conductor only grunted, and in a little while the man again assailed him. If the wind wasn't dead ahead, he said, he wished he'd put on more steam, because he wanted to see where his wife was buried before the tombstone crumbled to pieces. The conductor gave him no satisfaction. Then he begged him to rattle along a little because he had a note coming due in three months. The conductor threatened to kick him, and so the passenger sat down and got to talking and laughing with another man, soon forgetting his worry. By and by the conductor coming along said to him: "Don't feel so badly about your wife's death?" "Time heals all wounds," sighed the man. "And you are not too particular about that note," sneered the conductor. "Not now. That's all right. Don't worry. I've been flying up, and I find that the note has come down since I spoke to you last."

A Swiss named John Winkler, of Stone Creek, O., recently exhibited a remarkable feat of strength and physical endurance. On a wager of $100, he carried a barrel of flour, weighing 225 pounds, a distance of three miles, in fifty-five minutes. Under the wager, he could have rested fifteen minutes, but he stopped but four minutes of the time, and came in on the home-stretch seemingly but little fatigued.—Chicago Journal.

A gentleman who was playing billiards in Toronto happened to touch one of the billiard balls with the lighted end of his cigar. The billiard ball immediately took fire and burned rapidly. It was made of celluloid.—Montreal Witness.

FLUSHED WITH SHAME.

The Defaulting Cashier of the Third National Bank, of St. Louis, Goes Forth to Mingle With the Convicts of a Penitentiary.

St. Louis, March 24.—The scene yesterday, when Obey E. Owen, the defaulting cashier of the Third National Bank of this city, was admitted to the United States Penitentiary at Chester, was a sad one. Owen left the St. Louis jail yesterday morning in charge of Deputy Marshal Wheeler, and accompanied by his father-in-law, John W. Luke. Chester was reached a little after noon, and here for the first time, Owen's courage seemed to fail him, and he shook his head sadly when he noticed some of the convicts in their striped clothes. As he shook hands with the deputy marshal tears rolled down the prisoner's face, and he said, "This is hard." His hair was cut close, his beard was gone, and in a few minutes the trim business man was transformed into a convict. His face was flushed with shame as he was sent out into the yard to mingle with other convicts, and the scene was one painful to all who witnessed it. Owen's sentence is for eight years, but good behavior may reduce the term to a little over five.

A RUNAWAY HEARSE.

The Coffin Thrown Out and the Corpse Exposed.

PITTSBURG, March 24.—Yesterday, while the corpse of J. P. Schmidt was being removed to a South Side undertaking room, the horses attached to the hearse ran off, dashing down the main street at a fearful speed. At Nineteenth street the vehicle struck the corner of a house, and was wrecked. The coffin was thrown out upon the street, and the lid being broken exposed the corpse to the gaze of the crowd, which had been quickly collected by the accident. The horror of the affair was manifest to all, and the remains were composed at once in the coffin, and taken to a neighboring store, from which, as soon as possible, they were removed to their destination. The horses broke away from the fragments of the hearse, and continued their flight to the river, where they were finally halted. The affair created temporary great excitement.

Escape of Deserters.

COLUMBUS, O., March 25.—The two prisoners whose ingenious escape from the United States Barracks has been reported, were Burt Spangberg and John Mohar, of Cleveland. They had been sentenced to two years in the prison at Fort Leavenworth, for desertion, and were soon to be sent there. The guard was one Henry Swope, a raw recruit. The prisoners, with chains to their legs, had been sent to work in the rear of the officers' quarters. They soon got close to the guard, wrenched his gun from him, marched him to the point of the bayonet out to the railroad track, a distance of 250 yards, and, while one pointed the gun at the guard, the other broke off the manacles with the bayonet. They then forced him to surrender his cartridges, which they destroyed, withdrew the charge from the gun, which they filled up with mud, when they returned the weapon to the guard, and scattered. The alarm was given at the barracks, but it was too late to find the sharp convicts, and no trace of them has yet been discovered.

Tiding Over a Heavy Deficit.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., March 25.—The deficit of Ray, the bookkeeper of the Merchants & Planters' Bank, is placed at $60,000. The bank will meet the loss by using $30,000 of its reserve and accumulation, and by reducing its stock $25,000.

A Matrimonial Complication.

We learn of a curious matrimonial complication which occurred in Jones County, Ga., a short time ago. It seems that a certain young lady was ardently sought after by two young gentlemen. Each pressed his suit with so much zeal that the young lady could not decide between them. To gain time she engaged herself to both, duly appointing a time for marriage. One young gentleman at once went to the father to get his consent, and was made happy. The other no less promptly interviewed the mother, with entirely satisfactory results. Neither father nor mother mentioned the affair to each other. The young lady then wrote to No. 1 postponing the marriage. But the appointed time came on and No. 2 came with it having made every preparation; but at the very last moment he was informed of the other engagement and retired. No. 1, however, ringed No. 2 and treated and feigned a like fate, withdrew from the race. Thereupon No. 2 renewed his suit, won the vacillating fair one, and everybody was made happy.—Macon Telegraph.

A Swiss named John Winkler, of Stone Creek, O., recently exhibited a remarkable feat of strength and physical endurance. On a wager of $100, he carried a barrel of flour, weighing 225 pounds, a distance of three miles, in fifty-five minutes. Under the wager, he could have rested fifteen minutes, but he stopped but four minutes of the time, and came in on the home-stretch seemingly but little fatigued.—Chicago Journal.

A gentleman who was playing billiards in Toronto happened to touch one of the billiard balls with the lighted end of his cigar. The billiard ball immediately took fire and burned rapidly. It was made of celluloid.—Montreal Witness.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

MONDAY EVE., MARCH 26, 1883.

ROSSER & McCARTHY,
PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS.

AGAIN old Maysville's pretty girls.
Arrangements have begun,
To give as circus men would say.
"Three first class shows in one."
And if you've got the hardihood,
A ticket not to buy,
You might as well go make your will
And choose a place to die.

THERE was a false fire alarm sounded Saturday afternoon.

The Grand Army Post in Chester now has a membership of fifty.

ENTERTAINMENTS are now in order to a tone for the forty days of self-denial.

The Boston and Scotia are due up to-night. They will arrive about midnight.

THE BULLETIN'S owl is indebted for a high compliment to three of the most charming ladies in the city.

PETER CONKLING, of Ripley, the well-known clown, has gone to Mexico, Mo., to join James Robinson's circus.

OWNERS of stock are informed that they can have their bills printed at this office on the most favorable terms. Give us a call.

The sixty inch saw accidentally broken at the Kentucky Saw Mills last week cost Messrs. Collin's Rudy & Co., $213. The entire loss by the accident was about $250.

THE REV. Mr. Beckwith, of Atlanta, Ga., who was offered the charge of the Church of the Nativity, in this city, we regret to say has not been able to accept the call.

As soon as the weather will permit, Mr. S. W. Meyer will begin the erection of a one-story brick warehouse on one of his lots near Robinson & Co.'s flour mill. It will be used for storage purposes.

The decayed grain on Wall street referred to in a former article in this paper, is not in the cellars of the buildings there, but upon the street. It should nevertheless be removed, and that immediately.

MR. NEWTON COOPER has decided, we are informed, to build a large brick grain and tobacco warehouse on his lots on Front street, near Market. The building will be a valuable addition to the business property of the city.

THE SPEERS BROTHERS of Aberdeen, have lately bought crops of tobacco from the following persons: D. M. King and W. Harding at 10 cents a pound and S. B. Ellis at 11 cents. Joseph Chain sold his crop to Dryden & Flanahan, of Manchester, for 10 cents a pound.

Lecture at Aberdeen.

There will be a lecture at the Methodist church, in Aberdeen, this evening at half past seven o'clock, by Mr. Rathbone, of Washington, D. C., Past Supreme Chancellor of the Grand Lodge of Knights of Pythias. The subject will be "Our Mission."

Rebuilding.

Two large and handsome stables, more commodious than any of those destroyed by fire recently, are to be put up at the Fair Grounds, work on them beginning this morning. The two buildings will cost $1,865, and will be built by Messrs. Lane & Warwick.

MR. JNO. A. BEAN, of this county thinks he has been fortunate enough to discover on his farm lead and possibly silver ore. He proposes at any rate to open a mine and offers one-half of whatever may be developed to any person who will furnish the capital to work it.

WITH the exception of our yearly subscribers the accounts of all who take the DAILY BULLETIN will hereafter be considered due every week. We therefore request that our readers will make it convenient to pay the amount due to the carriers every Saturday afternoon when they call to deliver the paper.

MR. A. B. GREENWOOD, of the firm of A. B. Greenwood & Son, the well known painters left for Charleston, W. Va., last Thursday evening to make a bid for the painting of the Custom House, Postoffice, Revenue office and other public buildings at that place. The fact that Mr. Greenwood was sent for speaks well of the reputation of Maysville artisans abroad.

TO OUR FRIENDS.

We send out to our readers to-day the DAILY BULLETIN in an enlarged form and with a considerable part of its space filled with the latest and most interesting telegraphic news. The market reports are from thoroughly reliable sources and embrace the latest information on that subject it has been possible to obtain. These reports will be worth to the farming and trading community a great many times the cost of the paper in the course of the year. We therefore hope to largely increase the circulation of the BULLETIN in the country and among those who are to be benefitted by the information we shall print every day. We begin with six-hundred subscribers which embrace the best people in the city and county, and this number will certainly be largely added to as time goes by. Distributing as we do each week in the homes of Maysville and the county thirty-six hundred copies of the DAILY BULLETIN, with a certainty enlarging the number, it is hardly necessary to speak of its value as a medium for advertisements. The advantage the BULLETIN has in that respect is apparent to all. And while this advantage is on the side of the BULLETIN, its rates for advertising are at the same time the lowest.

In the matter of gathering and presenting in a readable form the local news of the city and county, the BULLETIN will be found as alert and enterprising as any, and whatever happens that is worth knowing will be found in its columns. In the enterprise in which we have engaged we ask the sympathy and aid and comfort of the good people of Maysville and of this and the neighboring counties and wherever the BULLETIN finds a reader.

James S. Armstrong.

The following notice of the late James Armstrong is from the Cincinnati Enquirer:

Brief mention has been made of the death in Paris, France, a few days ago, of James S. Armstrong a wealthy American, who had resided in that city for many years. But few Cincinnatians recognized in him a prominent banker of this city of forty years ago. James S. Armstrong was born in Maysville, Ky., eighty-three years ago and came to this city quite young. There is no one now living here who can tell much of his earlier days, and but little is known of his subsequent career, beyond the fact he was the second President of the Commercial Bank, succeeding Robert Buchanan, shortly after the bank referred to succeeded the old United States Bank. Here and abroad Mr. Armstrong was remarkably fortunate, and had in 1843 accumulated what then was a vast estate and which has proportionately increased in value since. In 1843 he retired from business, and leaving his real estate in the care of William Miller, who had been his confidential clerk for years, he removed to Paris, where he lived in elegant style until his death, entertaining his friends from this city when ever they had occasion to visit the French Capital. Mr. Armstrong was a widower and had, I understand, no children. His near relatives living at far as is known, is Frank W. Armstrong, a half brother, residing in Hillsboro, Ohio, and who, since Mr. Miller's departure from this country, has had charge of the interests of the estate in this city.

Mr. Frank W. Armstrong is not the only or the nearest blood relative of the deceased. He has two full sisters living, Mrs. Richard Henry Lee, of Maryland, and Mrs. R. G. Dobyns, of this city. Mrs. A. A. Mannen, of Maysville, also is a half sister.

Rare Event.

The young ladies of Maysville have decided to present at the Opera House next Friday evening the 30th inst., an entertainment that promises to be of the rarest interest and is in reality three separate entertainments in one. There will be an Old Folks Concert; a concert by the well known and popular "Smith Family," and the "Sleeping Car Farce" by a troupe of more than ordinarily gifted amateurs. If you should miss witnessing all this, you will be sure afterwards to stamp yourself as wanting in appreciation of a most highly refined and at the same time a most amusing entertainment. The price for reserved seats is 75 cents and the general admission 50 cents.

Hanging Needed.

Another attempt was made last Saturday night to wreck the train due in this city that evening. Three pieces of iron were placed on the track near Myers' Station, but by good luck they were discovered by a laborer who removed them before the train arrived. Two efforts to wreck trains were made last week on the Louisville and Nashville division, two miles from Lexington. This kind of work is getting to be very common and stringent measures will be required to put it at an end. Wehn caught in the act the perpetrators of such outrages as these should promptly dangle at rope's end.

PERSONALS.

Points About People Here and Elsewhere.

Mrs. C. M. Dodson, we regret to announce, is very ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Aiken, of Pittsburgh, are the guests of Robert Bissett.

Mr. Brannard T. Smith, of Cincinnati, spent Sunday with his friends in this city.

Hon. E. C. Phister will leave this afternoon to attend Circuit Court at Covington.

Mrs. Imogene Ficklin is visiting her brother Mr. W. P. McLaughlin, at Covington.

Miss Mary Leverman, of Georgetown, Ohio, is the guest of the Misses Greenwood, of this city.

The many friends of Mr. John J. Mulline will be pleased to learn that he is much better this morning.

Rev. J. G. Hunter, of Georgetown, has been invited to take charge of the Presbyterian Church at Frankfort.

The latest news received from Winchester, Ohio, of Mrs. Joseph Varian's condition, is that she is better.

Mrs. James Williams, of Orangeburg, is sick and not expected to live. She is a daughter of Mr. James Curtis.

Mr. Charles Wilson an aged and respected citizen of Wilson Bottom died last week after a painful illness.

Uncle Lewis Tolle, of the Orangeburg neighborhood, now in his ninety-eighth year is very sick and not expected to live. He is probably the oldest man in the county.

Mrs. Calvert, better known as "Aunt Katie" who lives in the neighborhood of Mt. Gilead, is dangerously sick. She is the widow of the late Allison Calvert, and a woman much beloved by her many friends.

Woolen Wedding.

Mrs. and Mrs. George Fleming, of East Maysville, on Friday evening last entertained a large number of their friends, the occasion being the celebration of their woolen wedding. The evening passed very pleasantly and will long be remembered by those who were fortunate enough to be present. The following is a list of the gifts received:

Mr. Levi Fleming—two dresses.
Mrs. Jacob Miller—pair of linen towels.
Mrs. John Blanchard—pair of linen towels.
Mr. and Mrs. L. Dalton—edge stand.
Mrs. Levi Fleming—two cakes.
Mr. Thomas Bayne—pair of linen towels.

Mr. John Dillman—sailor.

Miss Annie Austin—pair of hose.

Mr. Wm. Holiday—box cigar.

CAPT. J. W. Frost's new boat, at Portsmouth, is receiving her machinery and will be ready to run by the first of April.

If there is anybody so thick headed as to believe newspaper men are not on the high road to fortune he is referred to Charles A. Dana, of the New York Sun, who has just bought with his spare change a house worth $150,000. They all do it at one time or another.

MR. J. M. HARRISON's residence, at Augusta, was slightly damaged by fire on Friday.

ON Mondays there will, of course, be no market report. It will be printed during each week beginning Tuesday.

In addition to the improvements in the BULLETIN to be noticed to-day, we are pleased to announce that there will be others to follow very soon.

ALL the steamboats are now enforcing the law which forbids passengers visiting the pilot house while the boat is under way. A notice to that effect has been conspicuously posted on all the steamers.

THE Cincinnati and Pittsburgh line of steamers do not now land at Ripley unless hauled, on account of the high wharfage charged there. The Ripley freight is put off at this city and sent to its destination by the Morning Mail. Our Ripley friends seem to be cutting off their noses to spite their faces.

Aquitted.

CHARLES RAMSEY, who was arrested near Ripley last week and brought to Maysville to answer the charge of robbery, was examined before the Mayor Friday and promptly discharged. It seems that he was sleeping on one of the coal boats with Heka Ramsey, who next day missed from his pocket $11.94. The evidence showed that there was no just ground for believing that Charles Ramsey was in any way connected with the disappearance of the money.

Fire at Washington.

SUNDAY morning between one and two o'clock a large tobacco barn, corner and a stable on the farm of W. H. Burrell, near Washington were totally destroyed by fire. The barn contained about fifteen thousand pounds of tobacco. In addition to this about four hundred bushels of corn, two buggies, a reaper and mower, farming implements and other property were burned. The buildings belonged to Mr. Durrett and the tobacco, etc., to himself and Mr. Frank Berry, a tenant. The loss amounted to about $3,500 and was covered by $2,400 insurance in the London and Liverpool and Globe Company. The origin of the fire is not known but by some persons it is thought to have been the work of an incendiary.

A RUPTURE IMMINENT.

At All Events We Are Informed that Our Present Amicable Relations With England Are Apt to Be Disturbed.

NEW YORK, March 25.—A rumor is current in Washington that Minister West has informed the State Department that Lord Granville instructs him to say that the violent expressions, which certain professed American citizens have given utterance to since the dynamite explosion in London, may disturb the otherwise amicable relations existing between England and the United States.

In answer to an inquiry, Minister West replied that of course he could say nothing in his official capacity, and he would not admit that this Government had been notified of any such instructions to him, but he said that Her Majesty's Government could do no less than take some cognizance of sentiments given vent to by O'Conor Ross and his associates. Finney and others, through their newspapers and otherwise, and that he had expected just such instructions from Earl Granville. "I'm gratified at the tone of the majority of American newspapers," he added, "and I think one of the reputable journals have exhibited any sympathy with the preachers of anarchy, destruction, and assassination."

Secretary Frelinghuysen was asked if the statement was true. "I have nothing to say upon the subject," was his answer. It is believed that some communication has just passed between the British Minister and the State Department, but there is reason to doubt that it took anything like the meaning form ascribed to it by rumor. There is a disposition here to attribute the color given the rumor to the Navy ring, which is not weary in its efforts to find pretexts for imposing a war establishment upon the country.

While a reporter was in Ross's office this morning, a man came in, bringing a roll of $300 in bills, which he said had been contributed by Brooklyn Irishmen for the specific purpose of blowing up the houses of Parliament. Ross declined to receive it, on the ground that it was against the law to take it for a specific act of that kind, but said that he would receive and forward the contribution to aid in freeing Ireland, or relieving Irish distress. Patrick Joyce, Secretary of the Fenian Brotherhood, took and received the money, saying that he would see that it went to its intended use. Ross said that a gentleman had offered him $10,000 during the day, on condition that it should be used in blowing up the houses of Parliament, but that he had felt obliged to decline it.

POOR BUT HONEST.

A Young Man Who Systematically Stole $80,000 in Order to Live Luxuriously.

NEW YORK, March 25.—It has just been discovered that J. B. Marston, of Plainfield, N. J., the interest clerk of the Equitable Trust Company of this city, disappeared ten days ago with $80,000 of the company's funds. His peculations extend over a period of five years. Fifteen years ago he entered the company's employ as errand boy, and steadily advanced in the esteem of all in the office. His books were models. Five years ago he married and began to indulge in luxurious living, saying that he had been left a fortune. March 1 he handed in his resignation, saying that he was about to withdraw from business. Ten or twelve days ago the company learned of the defalcations. It appears that when he left Plainfield he wrote a letter to a relative inclosing some few thousand dollars, to be given to the company, and confessed his guilt. The money was to be given to the company, but no explanations were to be made. Experts were immediately set to work upon Marston's books, and the defalcation was discovered. The company will lose nothing, the district attorney has been informed, and when Marston is discovered he will be prosecuted.

A Compromise With Puddlers.

TRENTON, N. J., March 25.—A few weeks ago the puddlers in Cooper, Hewitt & Co.'s rolling-mill had submitted to them the alternative of a reduction in wages from $4 per ton to $3.50, or a temporary shut down of the mill. The latter alternative was accepted, and 1,000 men were thrown out of work. Early this week the rail department again opened, and this gave employment to between 200 and 300. Yesterday Superintendent Stokes called the puddlers together, and, after a free interchange of views, they agreed to accept a compromise and resume work at $3.75 a ton. The furnaces will be lighted up Monday, and the whole mill will be in operation. Monday next a reduction of 10 per cent. will be made in the wages of the rolling-mill employees at the Trenton Iron Works, where 150 are employed.

A Week's Failures.

NEW YORK, March 24.—Business failures for the last seven days numbering 195 against 225 last week, a reduction of 30. New England States 17, Middle States 39, Western States 57, Southern States 38, Pacific States and Territories 12, New York City 8, Canada 24.

A War Between Indians.

BENTON, MONT., March 25.—Further details of the fight on the 18th between a band of thieving Crees and a war party of Piegan, headed by Little Dog, say that about ten of both sides were killed. The Crees were fleeing at last accounts, with the Piegan in pursuit.

A Woman Fatally Burned.

MARSHALL, Mo., March 25.—While burning brush, near Napton, six miles southeast of this city, Mrs. Jane Howard was fatally burned. Her clothing by some accident caught fire, and before assistance could be rendered every article of clothing was burned on her person.

THE TOBACCO REBATE.

Mrs. DeLong Visits the Navy to Examine the Effects of Her Late Husband—Our Champion Seafarers.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—In a day or two the heads of the departments will furnish the civil service commission classified lists of the clerical forces, after which the commission will organize, when a chief examiner will be selected and rules adopted to govern the commission.

MRS. DE LONG.

Among the callers at the Navy Department yesterday was Mrs. De Long, wife of Captain De Long, who commanded the Arctic cruiser Jeannette. She examined the original journal and note book of her husband, and made some memoranda from his written words. Mrs. De Long is about twenty-eight years old, rather small, light brown hair, hazel eyes, and altogether a beautiful lady.

REBATE ON TOBACCO.

Commissioner Raum believes that the inability of the Treasury Department to come forward with the cash rebate on unbroken packages of tobacco in the hands of dealers, and the offer to pay in stamps, will make great deal of trouble and give much dissatisfaction. He thinks the failure of Congress to provide for the payment of these rebates a stupid blunder, as it must have been plain that it would require an appropriation to pay the rebates.

HANIAN, THE SCULLER.

Edward Hanian, the world's champion sculler, who is now here in training on the Potomac for his race with Kennedy, Washington's sculler, is attracting a good deal of local attention. He will row Kennedy at Point of Pines, near Boston, May 30, and will be here until May 16. Washington sports will try to get a match between Hanian and Wallace Ross before Hanian's row with Kennedy. Neither Hanian nor Ross have ever been beaten.

Hanian is the acknowledged champion of the world. He offers to row Ross for $2,500 a side within seven weeks on the Potomac, and divide the purse to be donated by the citizens, which, he intimates, should not be less than $4,000. An effort will be made to raise the fund. It would make the most exciting single skull race ever given in the United States.

A TROPICAL SNOW STORM.

Snow fell here in large flakes nearly all of yesterday. Old inhabitants say that just forty years ago to-day three feet of snow fell here, and in some places it drifted to a depth of five and six feet. In answer to a telephone message, the people at the observatory say that this is a "tropical snow storm," that it arrived here last night from North Carolina, while stations east, west, and north of us reported fair and clear weather. It is a meteorological phenomena. It was first heard of by wire from Kitty Hawk, on the North Carolina coast, and is going north. Snow is falling to-night.

The "Texas Wail."

FORT WORTH, TEXAS, March 25.—A man, thirty years of age, fair complexion, with a mustache, is lodged in the Fort Worth jail, charged with having participated in extensive train robberies and confidence games in Texas. He gives his name as Calhoun, and claims to have been born in Chicago.

CHICAGO, March 24.—Calhoun was known among the sporting fraternity as "The Texas Wail." He lived here a year, but left town about two months ago. He always had plenty of money, played high, and was usually lucky.

A Dodge to Avoid Revenue Duty.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—John D. Piatt, of Chiengo, secretary of the Distillers' Association, who is here, estimates that distillers will export 2,000,000 barrels of goods to avoid the tax of ninety cents per gallon. It is understood that most of it will go to Bermuda, where storage is secured and safety is guaranteed under British laws. Some will not be stored at all, but will simply be exported and brought right back to custom house, where it may remain a year without payment of the tax.

A Rascal Fleeces Honest Citizens.

CHICAGO, March 25.—Peter Gast, a German, was arrested last night for obtaining money under false pretenses by a sick game. He advertised in the Staats Zeitung that he had found a package of valuable Government bonds, and to all who called he delivered packages purporting to contain $85,000 in bonds. Several men paid him from $25 to $100 for the boodle, and are now kicking themselves.

Riddled With Bullets.

DENVER, March 24.—At daybreak yesterday, at Lake Valley, Major Fountain's command surprised two notorious rustlers, Jack Watts and William Giliard. Arrived at camp, while the soldiers were unsaddling, they made a break for liberty and had two hundred yards start, when Fontaine ordered the men to fire. Both the rustlers fell dead riddled with bullets.

A Dinner to Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes.

NEW YORK, March 25.—The leading members of the medical profession of this city will give a complimentary dinner to Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes at Delmonico's Thursday evening, April 12.

A STRIKE ON HORSEBACK.

JACASA, TEX., March 25.—Four hundred cowboys are striking for an increase of $30 to $50 per month. All are heavily armed, and are boycotting those who refuse to strike. They have publicly threatened to burn ranches and cut fences if their demands are not acceded to.
